

We come together to turn the tide, to overwhelm war with peace, and oppression with justice.

UFPJ stands in solidarity with diverse movements working for peace, justice, collective liberation, equality, and environmental sustainability

UFPJ Helps You Build the Movement

UFPJ enables local, national and international groups to collaborate and coordinate actions on critical issues and emerging new conflicts.

UFPJ makes the connections among war, racism and greed with all struggles for peace, justice and sustainability.

UFPJ promotes the actions, events and campaigns of its member groups.

UFPJ hosts movement conference calls to deepen our knowledge and strategies about the critical issues we face.

UFPJ has several issue-oriented working groups and provides extensive web resources.

Our only hope today lies in our ability to recapture the revolutionary spirit and go out into a sometimes hostile world declaring eternal hostility to poverty, racism, and militarism.

United For Peace and Justice (UFPJ) is a network of hundreds of peace and justice organizations around the U.S. and the world. Together we work to end war and oppression, shift resources toward human needs, protect the environment, and promote sustainable alternatives. Our long-term goal is to grow a culture of justice, peace, equality, and cooperation. We value diversity and respect the earth. We encourage member groups and individuals to engage in a wide range of activities from educating the public and their elected representatives, to protests, street theater, nonviolent direct action and mass mobilization.

Help Stop the Next War Before it Starts: Iran Pledge of Resistance

The Iran Pledge of Resistance, is a commitment to take action to prevent a war with Iran. You can join this emergency response network by signing up online and then organizing with your family, friends, co-workers and neighbors. Prepare yourself with nonviolent direct action training and get ready to let our government know that we do not want another war!

Ten Years of Working for Peace with Justice

UFPJ was founded in 2002, to oppose George Bush's Global War on Terror. On February 15, 2003 a UFPJ initiated call for global action at the World Social Forum resulted in 11 million people worldwide protesting war with Iraq. For ten years UFPJ has been a leader working for peace. After the 2008 economic crash and the rise of the Occupy movement, UFPJ organized into a network and began more work on the economy. UFPJ's vital programmatic work is carried out by our member groups and by volunteers leading working groups and campaigns. Go to our website to join a working group.

Hope and Danger Ahead!

The Arab Spring, the Wisconsin Wave, the Occupy movement and other popular uprisings around the world bring hope for this next decade. Yet the threat of an Israeli attack on Iran grows while conflicts in the region escalate each day. Climate disaster is now unprecedented yet our addiction to fossil fuels is unabated. As we work for peace, we must remember that without justice there can be no real peace....

Beyond War a New Economy is Possible

Many UFPJ member groups are working on campaigns to fund jobs, education and healthy communities by cutting the military budget. UFPJ collaborates with the New Priorities Network and other efforts to redirect military spending to human needs.

End the US War in Afghanistan

UFPJ's Afghanistan Working Group exposes the horrors and costs of over a decade of occupation and war.

We call for withdrawal of U.S./NATO forces and a negotiated, just settlement involving Afghans, neighboring countries and international parties.

Nuclear Abolition

The Nuclear Disarmament/Redefining Security Working Group works to keep the issue of nuclear weapons at the forefront of our fight against militarism and empire, to expose the exorbitant financial costs and grave environmental dangers of the entire nuclear chain, and to highlight the links between nuclear energy and weapons.

Every August we observe "Nuclear-Free Future Month" to promote a world free of nuclear weapons and nuclear power.

Move Congress!

The Legislative Working Group connects people and groups across the country to pressure Congress to end the wars and redirect military spending to domestic needs. Join the Legislative Working Group to receive information about bills currently before Congress, and to consider effective strategies and actions to shift US policies toward justice and peace.
